INTRODUCTION

Repeatedly one hears and reads of larger Mennonite family reunions. This is especially true in this centennial year of the Mennonite migration from Russia to America in 1874. Early in 1972 some members of the JACOB SCHRAG family were discussing the possibility of having a family reunion as well as preparing a Family Record for publication.

The first family reunion was held in Memorial Hall on the Bethel College Campus on August 13, 1972. Work on the Family Record was begun even earlier and received encouragement at the family reunion. A committee composed of one person from each of the eight children of the JACOB SCHRAG family had been created earlier, which now felt encouraged to go ahead with the undertaking of gathering material and publishing this book.

A word of appreciation and thanks is in order to all who have given time and effort in gathering pertinent information. This sort of undertaking would hardly be possible without the help and cooperation of many and special thanks is due to the persons who assisted in this. Their names are listed on page iii. Much effort has been put forth to have the data involved as nearly correct as possible, but even so, no doubt some errors will have crept in. In all there are over 1700 members in the family at present. The undersigned would be grateful for any corrections submitted in the hope that they might be made use of in possible future revised editions.

There is more than one purpose of such a Family Record. It will help to become better acquainted with each other and so serve to preserve family consciousness, unity and integrity. It will also help us remember the great price our fathers paid for their faith. The Christian faith as they understood and lived it included: freedom of conscience; democracy and the high worth of the individual; separation of church and state; believer's baptism; the church as the body of Christ and composed of persons on a voluntary basis; and in our military age, especially their refusal to participate in war and their insistence upon "the love of enemy" as one of the chief characteristics of the Christian, should be remembered. Some of these items are quite universally accepted today by Christians, and even "refusal to participate in war" is increasingly becoming recognized as absolutely essential if mankind is to survive on earth. May this Family Record make us all more conscious of our particular mission in this respect and may the God of Peace help us all to be more true and faithful to the Prince of Peace, our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ.      E.G.K.

PART I

THE SWISS-VOLHYNIAN ANABAPTIST-MENNONITE BACKGROUND

PART I—THE SWISS-VOLHYNIAN ANABAPTIST-MENNONTITE BACKGROUND

The Jacob and Katherina (Stucky) and Anna (Kaufman) SCHRAG family belongs to the Swiss-Volhynian cultural group, hence this background is pertinent to this family record.

In Switzerland

The Anabaptist movement began in Zurich, Switzerland, over differences on church doctrines and practices among Protestant Reformation leaders. On January 15, 1525, in a public debate Huldrych Zwingli, the Swiss Reformation leader, defended infant baptism while Conrad Grebel and Felix Manz advocated adult believers' baptism. The City Council upheld Zwingli's view and ordered that all unbaptized children in Zurich be baptized within a week. On January 21, 1525 a number of "Swiss Brethren" (as they were called) met for consultation at the home of Felix Manz. Here, after Bible study and prayer, Georg Blaurock asked Conrad Grebel to baptize him, and in turn he then baptized the others. Following this, communion service was observed.

Conrad Grebel was a student of New Testament and Greek. Felix Manz was a student of Hebrew and the Old Testament. Georg Blaurock was a former student at the University of Leipzig and now a very popular preacher. When Zwingli first came to Zurich these "Swiss Brethren" were friends of his and cooperated with him. But when he sponsored the establishment of a state church by having the Zurich city council make decisions on religion, they broke with him.<sup>1</sup>

The Anabaptist group at Zurich was probably the first one to consider itself a brotherhood alongside the prevailing church. Within a week, after the first believers' baptism on January 21, some 35 persons were baptized in the nearby village of Zollikon, constituting the first congregation. With fiery zeal they promoted their faith and congregations developed in Zurich, Basel, St. Gall, Bern, and in adjoining German speaking territory. The result was a great revival but also a very cruel and widespread persecution.

Zurich was the first to institute violent suppression. The first death sentence, imposed by Protestants upon a Protestant, for freedom of religion and conscience was carried out by drowning Felix Manz in Zurich on January 5, 1527.

In 1527 the Protestant towns of Zurich, Bern, Basel, St. Gall, and Constance united and adopted a common policy against the Anabaptists. Much misery and bloodshed followed. Anabaptism was made a capital crime.

In Canton Bern

Since the Swiss-Volhynian Mennonites originally came largely from Canton Bern in Switzerland, we turn to it. The first Anabaptist trial in Bern was held on May 24, 1529. As time went on, severe fines, confiscation of property, long imprisonment, fearful torture, branding, scourging, exile, being sold as galley slaves, banishment, and the death penalty by drowning, dungeon, fire and sword were imposed by the authorities. The Martyrs' Mirror names 40 persons martyred to death in Bern alone between 1529 and 1571.<sup>2</sup>

The Bernese Anabaptists were simple believers, accepting the Bible but placing the New Testament above the Old; holding to separation of church and state; insisting on freedom of religion and conscience; demanding that each congregation be allowed to choose its own ministers by vote and lot, and ordain them; used the apostolic church as its model which was not allied with the state and was made up of voluntary personal followers of Jesus; and practiced adult believers' baptism.

The Bernese government, on the other hand, was determined to maintain control over all religious faith and life of its subjects, regulating everything so as to effect unity of the church and the salvation of the masses. Hence infant baptism was declared compulsory, oaths were insisted upon, the sacredness of state offices was stressed, and finally the persecution of Anabaptists was demanded.

Many conferences and disputations were held in the hope of convincing the Anabaptists of their error, but to no avail. Persecution got more severe but the Anabaptists increased. The Bern government issued mandate after mandate, and finally created a special Anabaptist Commission to deal with them and, after filling the ordinary prisons, even constructed a special building for their imprisonment. Persecution became so severe that in 1659 the Dutch government, at the request of the Dutch Mennonites, interceded and pled for them, offering to help them migrate. Many left for Moravia, Holland, South Germany, France, and elsewhere.

In South Germany

Among the Anabaptist leaders in South Germany were Hans Denk, a scholar; Balthasar Hubmeier, a theologian; and Pilgrim Marbeck, an engineer. Yakob Hutter, a hatmaker, (d. 1536?) became the leader of Anabaptists who had spread east into Austria and practiced community of goods. They are now known as Hutterites.

Jacob Ammann, advocating the Ban (MEIDUNG), led a schism in the Alsace and Switzerland areas, 1693-1697, which resulted in the formation of the conservative Amish Mennonites. Both the Hutterish and the Amish movement influenced the Swiss-Volhynian Mennonite group considerably.

Already as early as 1671 many Swiss families fled to South Germany. Among these was one Jost Krahenbuehl (Krehbiel). At the same time, or soon thereafter, others followed, such as: Zuricher (those earlier from Zurich, later Zerger), Mueller, Kaufman, Schrag, Gering, Stucky, etc. Not all the families we are concerned with here (the later Swiss-Volhynian group), migrated to South Germany; some just crossed the border of Switzerland and settled near Montbeliard (Moempelgard), France. These we shall consider in a later section.

Those in South Germany settled not far from Worms and Mannheim. The population in this area was greatly depleted by the Thirty Years War. So they were welcomed but still only as heretics and with restrictions. They were allowed freedom of worship but not to build their own church buildings. They were not allowed to meet in groups of more than twenty members. Trying to convert their neighbors was forbidden. They were denied the right to live in cities. Marriage required the consent of the government. However, they prospered and soon became known as "Die Stillen im Lande" (the quiet in the land). Gradually they spread more and more, and slowly adopted the South German language and culture, which was not too different.

In time, due to economic and political pressure, Mennonites in South Germany began to migrate. Some came to Lancaster, Pennsylvania, even before the American Revolution. In 1870 Joseph II, of Austria invited German farmers to settle the land he had gained in the division of Poland. Among those who responded to this invitation were some twenty-six Swiss-German Anabaptist families who later migrated to Russia and there found their way to the province Volhynia.<sup>3</sup>

In Northern Germany and the Low Countries

At this point we are leaving the Swiss Anabaptists in order to take a brief look at Northern Germany and the Netherlands. Melchior Hoffman, a tanner, (c1495-1543) who had joined the Anabaptist brotherhood in Strasburg by baptism in 1529, took the movement to Northern Germany and the Low Countries. He founded an Anabaptist congregation in Emden, Friesland. Without much schooling, he was nevertheless a fiery preacher and voluminous writer. He held chiliastic views, insisting Christ would return in 1533 and Strasburg would be the new Jerusalem. The common people heard him gladly and his teachings spread very rapidly, although persecution of Anabaptists was also very severe.

Jan Matthys, a baker, the Anabaptist leader at Muenster, Germany, was even more radical in his millennialism than the Melchiorites. Not Strasburg but Muenster was now to be the New Jerusalem. By 1534 non-resistance was replaced and it became the duty of the faithful to take up the sword in behalf of the new kingdom. Apostles of this Muensterite movement covered northern Germany and the Low countries preaching the new gospel, especially to the Melchiorites. In the meantime the Catholic bishop of Muenster laid seige to the city with a small army. In April, 1534, Jan Matthys was killed in an attempt to break thru the lines.

Now Jan van Leiden, a tailor, who was even more radical, took charge and under his command, of a little more than a year, many horrible excesses and bloody orgies took place. They were in a life and death struggle over the city and stopped short of nothing. The Muensterites became desperate, van Leiden set up a dictatorship with himself as head under the title King David. Polygamy was introduced as there were many more women than men in Muenster. In the spring of 1535 food became scarce, famine and disease spread. Horses, dogs, cats, rats, and mice were eaten. By the time the city fell the population was greatly reduced. The few hundred left were summarily put to the sword except the leaders Jan van Leiden and Bernhard Knipperdolling were put in cages and sent through the towns of northwestern Germany as criminal exhibits and finally, after torture, executed. Their bodies, in iron cages, were suspended from the towers of St. Lambert's church, exposed until they rotted. The empty cages are still hanging there today.

While the leaders of the less extreme and more balanced type of Anabaptism were men of solid learning, such as Conrad Grebel, Felix Manz, Balthasar Hubmeier, Hans Denk, Michael Sattler, and later Menno Simons, who, for the most part were ex-monks and university graduates, the leaders of the fanatical offshoots like the Melchiorites and Muensterites were men of little or no scholastic training, laboring men, enthusiastic and posted on certain parts of the Bible, as Daniel and Revelation, but with little knowledge outside of that. They were self appointed unbalanced lay-preachers.

Of course there were many Anabaptists in northern Germany and the Netherlands who never were in sympathy with the extreme Melchiorites and Muensterites. Among such leaders in Holland were the brothers Obbe and Dirk Philips, and especially Menno Simons.

Menno Simons (1496-1561) was the most outstanding Anabaptist leader of the Low Countries in the 16th century. He was born in the Friesland village, Witmarsum. He was educated for the priesthood. In January 1536, he laid down his priestly office, renounced the Catholic church, shut the door to a brilliant career, and deliberately chose instead, a life of uncertainty, misery and poverty, constantly threatened with persecution, imprisonment, and death. For the rest of his days he remained an outlaw, and with his wife and children, a wanderer with a reward upon his head. Even those who dared give him and his family food or shelter, paid for their kindness with their life. He traveled much, participated in many debates, was a voluminous writer, and assumed the responsibilities of leadership at the crucial time of the movement when it was in danger of losing its original identity under the influence of chiliastic and revolutionary leaders. Heinrich Bullinger, a Swiss Reformed historian, writing in 1560, recognized thirteen different groups among the Anabaptists. In 1589 Christoff Erhardus lists forty different groups. In time many died out, others gradually gathered together under the leadership of Menno Simons and today are called Mennonites.

In France

As indicated earlier, some of our people leaving Switzerland in 1671 because of persecution settled near Montbeliard (Moempelgard), France. Here too they found some restrictions. They were allowed their own cemeteries, but were not allowed to build their own churches. The Swiss dialect was continued, probably because the French was so different. They engaged largely in their Swiss occupations of dairy farming and cheese making. The Montbeliard Mennonite church, which still exists, was then Amish.

In the later part of the eighteenth century, although they had good relations with the government, their neighbors were not happy that they refused military service. The Napoleonic wars were in progress and that people were not happy with neighbors who refused to participate in military service, is understandable. So in 1790 and 1791 groups left for Polish Austria in search of new opportunities.<sup>4</sup> Mennonite names at Montbeliard were: Schwartz, Roth, Graber, Gering, Kaufman, Stucky, Flickinger, Rupp, Sutter, and others.

In Polish Austria

As indicated earlier, Joseph II of Austria invited German farmers to settle some of his newly acquired lands. Many went to Austria, among them 26 Mennonite families. Mennonites here were given religious freedom, ten-year tax exemption, military exemption, and some financial assistance.<sup>5</sup> Others followed and founded the village of Falkenstein. Later some 18 more Mennonite families joined them and founded the village of Einsiedel. Both Falkenstein and Einsiedel were not far from Lemberg. Others came later and founded the village Rosenberg. Names among the Swiss Mennonites in Austria were: Krehbiel, Muendelheim, Schrag, Albrecht, Brubacher, Maurer, Mueller, Schmidt, Zerger, and others. The three villages of Falkenstein, Einsiedel, and Rosenberg also formed the beginning of the Galician Mennonite settlement.

A Montbeliard Mennonite group left France in 1790-1791. According to a passport issued at this time this party included Moses Gering, John Graber, John Lichiti, Peter Kaufman and his wife Elizabeth (Graber) Kaufman, and Anna Rothe. (For a copy of passport see Mennonite Archives at Bethel College.) The passport states the group was to enter the service of Prince Adam Czartorinsky, Great General of Podolia. It is assumed that means they were to live on his lands.

In Russia

The Mennonites among themselves also had some difficulties. We have already referred to the fact that some of them were Amish. These stressed hooks and eyes while others were more liberal in matters of clothing. There also was difficulty among the leaders. A third source of trouble was the beginning of government restrictions on Mennonite

The three villages of Falkenstein, Einsiedel, and Rosenberg also formed the beginning of the Galician Mennonite settlement.

A Montbeliard Mennonite group left France in 1790-1791. According to a passport issued at this time this party included Moses Gering, John Graber, John Lichiti, Peter Kaufman and his wife Elizabeth (Graber) Kaufman, and Anna Rothe. (For a copy of passport see Mennonite Archives at Bethel College.) The passport states the group was to enter the service of Prince Adam Czartorinsky, Great General of Podolia. It is assumed that means they were to live on his lands.

In Russia

The Mennonites among themselves also had some difficulties. We have already referred to the fact that some of them were Amish. These stressed hooks and eyes while others were more liberal in matters of clothing. There also was difficulty among the leaders. A third source of trouble was the beginning of government restrictions on Mennonite religious liberty. However, the decisive element in the decision of the more conservative group to migrate to Russia was the invitation of some of the Hutterian Brethren there to join them in the Bruderhof. Accordingly some eleven families formerly from South Germany, left Poland in 1795 for the Hutterian Bruderhof near Visheska in the Russian Province of Chernigov.

MIGRATIONS OF THE SWISS (VOLHYNIA) MENNONITES

Adjustment to the life in the Bruderhof, however, was not easy. So after about two years the group left the Bruderhof again. During their stay here, some SCHRAG girls married Hutterite men, Waldner by name. One of these women later, as a widow, returned to her people with three Waldner sons, so adding that name to the Swiss-Volhynian group.

It is not too clear where the group went when they left the Bruderhof. Very likely some returned to Poland while others migrated to Michalin, Russia, where Prussian Mennonites were already located. Here a Wedel boy married into the Swiss group and joined them. In about 1802 both the Prussian and the Swiss groups migrated to Volhynia. The Swiss locating at Berezina near Dubno, the Prussian group going to Ostrog. Because the government was building a dam near here, the Swiss soon moved to Vignansky, only about two miles from where they were.

The group from Montbeliard, France, finally settled at Micheldorf, close to Warsaw (or possibly Lubin)—perhaps to give these Swiss dairy farmers a market for their cheese. The list here included, Albrecht, Bergthold, Flickinger, Graber, Gering, Gordia, Hubin, Hettinger, Kaufman, Maurer, Muendelheim, Ratzlaff, Roth, Rupp, Stucky, Sutter, and Zook. Several Lutheran families also joined, such as: Senner, Schwartz, Wolkart. An orphan boy Voran was adopted by Muendelheim.

The soil at Micheldorf was poor and so the group moved to a village near Vignansky, named Eduardsdorf. Here then the Swiss-South German and the Swiss-French were merged into one group again, although their dialects to this day differ a bit, such as Weitze and Weetze for wheat, Heim and Heem for home, Schtein and Schteen for stone, etc.

Eduardsdorf grew and had the following names: Albrecht, Flickinger, Goering, Krehbiel, Miller, Preheim, Ries, Schrag, Stucky, Sutter, Voran, Wedel, and Zerger. These were joined by Archelus, Strausz, and Waldner. In 1861 the majority migrated to Neumanufka and Kotosufka.

Some Micheldorf people settled near Horodisch and Waldheim in 1837. In Waldheim they owned their own land, apparently for the first time since Switzerland.

In 1860 Czar Alexander II in order to bring about more equality between nobility and peasants, issued the Emancipation Code. Among other things, this made available to Russian peasants large tracts of land at reasonable prices. Accordingly, in 1861 the now enlarged Eduardsdorf settlement moved about 100 miles east to the villages of Neumanufka and Kotosufka where they purchased land and divided it among the members. A church building was erected between the two villages which became the center of the community and the two villages became one under the name of Kotosufka. This church has been known as the Stucky church since their elder was Jacob Stucky. Here David Dirks and Frederick Ortman joined the group.

In 1860 there were four congregations of Swiss-Mennonites in Volhynia province: Horodisch, Walhheim, Kotosufka, and Sahorits. The Sahorits settlement was composed of people who had not taken part in the movement from Eduardsdorf to Kotosufka.<sup>6</sup>

Life in Vohlynia, Russia

Our people in Russia lived in villages surrounding the above mentioned four churches, with about 30 to 40 families in each village. To begin with, living quarters were very simple and primitive but were gradually improved as people were able. Each village had its orchard and well-kept gardens. At the center of the village was the school or church. Tall trees surrounded the entire village. Dwellings were all of similar style. In all villages, except Waldheim and Kotosufka, the land was rented or leased for 25 year periods. In time considerable difference in economic status of various families developed.

Each village had its blacksmiths, weavers and carpenters, but the majority of the residents were farmers. Farming was simple with primitive implements such as: iron-pointed plow and harrow, a wagon, a scythe, and a sickle. Field work was done with horses, of which a small farmer had two, a larger one perhaps six. Each farmer had from two to a dozen cows. Pastureland was held in common and the herder took care of the village herd.

Seeding was done by broadcasting. Only portions of crops were sold. Rye, wheat, buckwheat, oats, millet, flax, and potatoes were raised. The entire family worked at harvest time which took weeks to complete. Threshing was done in winter, by a flail. Clothing was mostly homespun, and furniture also was homemade.

Continuous moving was not conducive for a good school system. Only the elementary branches were taught. Often the preacher was also the teacher. The need for children's help in the kitchen and on the farm, besides the Amish prejudice against education, kept it at a minimum.

When a new village was started the church meetings were held in the homes until a building could be erected. The church Vorstand (Council) was composed of preachers, deacons and Vorsanger (song leader). A ministerial vacancy was filled by vote and lot. Church services lasted two and three hours. Often one hour was used for singing for which the "Ausbund" was used. The services consisted of prayer, sermon and testimony, besides singing. The day before Good Friday was fast day. The Lord's Supper and Foot-washing were observed on Good Friday. Church attendance was taken for granted. Church discipline was strict.<sup>7</sup>

As indicated in preceding pages, the ancestors of the Swiss Volhynian Mennonite group moved repeatedly because of persecution for their faith and/or to improve their livelihood. They can be traced through numerous settlements: In Switzerland in various areas about 150 years beginning as Anabaptists in 1525; in different places in what is now France and Germany nearly 100 years; and in what was Austria, Poland and Russia about 100 years, coming from the province of Volhynia to America in 1874, where they have now also been 100 years, but mostly in the same areas.

During their European sojourn, many were part of the Amish movement and some were also influenced by the Hutterites. Even today the simple lifestyle has abiding brotherhood values and promotes World Peace, which requires economic justice.

The Swiss Family names of Flickinger, Goering, Graber, Kaufman, Krehbiel, Mueller, Schrag, Stucky and Zerger were most common among them. Later others joined by marriage or otherwise. Among these were Albrecht, Dirks, Kopper, Lohrenz, Muendelheim, Nachtigal, Ortman, Penner, Preheim, Ratzlaff, Ries, Schroeder, Schwartz, Sennar, Strausz, Sutter, Unrau, Voran, Waltner and Wedel.

To America

In 1870 the Czar planned to require military service of all Russian young men. A delegation was sent to plead with the Czar but did not even get to meet him. Hence a new solution to the problem was looked for—namely migration. Thus finally in 1874 nearly all Swiss-Volhynian Mennonites migrated to America, settling around Freeman and Marion in South Dakota, and around Moundridge and Pretty Prairie in Kansas.

In spite of many hardships in the pioneer years in America, these people worked hard, were thrifty, and as a whole, led God-fearing lives in their new home. Soon they joined the General Conference of the Mennonite Church of North America and participated in its various phases of endeavor such as mission work, higher education, and publication. From their number have come various Conference officers and board members, mission and relief workers, college administrators and even government officials. In sacred memory of the heritage transmitted at great cost by our fore-fathers, and in sincere gratitude to God for the many blessings that have come to us in our beloved America—it behooves this generation to put forth consecrated effort to continue building on their fathers' foundation. "For other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ" 1 Cor. 3:11.

(SCHRAG-KAUFMAN) SCHRAG, FAMILY BACKGROUND

PART II

THE JACOB and KATHERINA (STUCKY), and ANNA (SCHRAG-KAUFMAN) SCHRAG, FAMILY BACKGROUND

THE SCHRAG NAME

Individual surnames originated for the purpose of more specific identification. The four primary sources for the second name were: occupation, location, father's name, and personal characteristics. The surname Schrag appears to be locational in origin, and likely associated with the German, meaning "dweller on (or near) a slope or hillside." The German word "schrag" or "schraeg" means oblique, sloping, inclined. Different spellings of the same original surname are a common occurrence. Dictionaries of surnames indicate probable spelling variations, such as: Schrag, Schragle, Schragg, Schrags, Schraeg, Schrock, Shrock, Schrack, Scrock, Shryock, Schreyack, Shrawk, and others. Many people migrating to America could not write their own names and when government officials asked them for their name they wrote it the way it sounded to them. This may account for some different ways of spelling the name.

The Mennonite Encyclopedia, Vol. IV, p. 480-481, reports as follows: SCHRAG (Schrock, Shrock, Schrack, Schragg), a Mennonite family name of Swiss origin found in the Palatinate after 1664. From Germany members of the family migrated to Galicia in 1773, and from there to the Russian province of Volhynia. In 1874 members of the Schrag family left Russia in the migration of the settlement to America and located in Kansas and South Dakota, where they are generally members of the General Conference Mennonite Church.

Other members of the Schrag family emigrated directly from Germany and Switzerland to America. As early as 1776 a Johannes Schrag landed in Philadelphia. Casper Schrock born in Switzerland c1745, came to America as a young man and settled in Somerset County, Pa. His son Peter (1795-1846) was an Amish Mennonite minister in Wayne County, Ohio. Many of his descendants live in Ohio and Indiana. Among the early members of the East Zorra Amish Mennonite Church, organized c1837 in Ontario, Canada were Daniel Schragg, John Schrag, and Joseph Schrag. Daniel Schragg (1813-91) was born in Bavaria, lived in Pennsylvania, and settled in Ontario, where he became the minister of the East Zorra Church in 1849. Descendants of the Ontario Schrags live in New York and Ontario.

The genealogy of the Tobias Schrock (Schrag) family shows many of his descendants living in Amish communities in Illinois, Iowa, and Kansas. He was born in Holmes County, Ohio, in 1823. Obituaries in Mennonite periodicals show the Mennonite (MC) and Amish branches of the family to be most numerously represented in Indiana, followed by Ohio, Kansas, and Illinois. In these two branches of the church 32 Schrock (Shrok) ministers were serving in 1937. Among the better-known members of the family was Andrew A. Schrock (1863-1949), for many years the bishop of the Metamora Mennonite Church, at Metamora, Ill., and Tobe Schrock (1897-?), bishop of Brown Mennonite Church at Elmdale, Michigan. . . .

(Bishop Andrew A. Schrock) "came to the Metamora community from Alsace at the age of six. . . . On July 8, 1894 he was ordained as a minister and on April 24, 1898, as bishop. He served the Metamora congregation faithfully and was also used widely in other congregations in the Western A.M. Conference. He was moderator of this Conference on six different occasions. . . . He died April 7, 1949.

The renewed emigration movement to America from various European countries during the first half of the 19th century was the result of various causes. The most important probably was the fact that the spirit of militarism prevailed throughout Europe during the Napoleonic wars. Mennonites found it difficult to maintain their non-resistant principles. Among the first of the immigrants of the new tide were the Swiss from both the Jura and the Emmental settlements. The pioneer of this Swiss movement was Benedict Schrag from Basel, who located with his family in what is now Wayne county, Ohio, as early as 1817. As a result of enthusiastic letters written back to his friends, he was soon followed by others from the Jura and Emmental settlements in Canton Bern, Switzerland. Colonies located in Wayne, Putnam and Allen counties, Ohio, and Adams county, Indiana. These were the forerunners of the large congregations of Swiss Mennonites around Dalton, Smithville, Bluffton and Pandora, Ohio, as well as of Bern, Indiana. (The Story of the Mennonites by C. Henry Smith, Fourth Edition, Revised by Cornelius Krahn, Mennonite Publication Office, Newton, Kansas, 1957, pp. 148, 571. See also James O. Lehman, Sonnenberg, A Haven and a Heritage. A Sesquicentennial History of the Swiss Mennonite Community of Southeastern Wayne County, Ohio, by the Kidron Community Council, Inc., Kidron, Ohio, 1969—regarding Benedict Schrag pp. 28-29.)

In a recent book on SHROCK FAMILY HISTORY, Descendants of Henry Schrock and Barbara Miller, from 1807 to 1971, compiled by Oscar R. Miller, of Berlin, Ohio 44610, are indicated many different spellings. In the book of 121 pages are listed a total of 525 families with 25 pictures, plus maps and charts. The historical introduction indicates that Henry Shrock was born in Somerset Co., Pa., and moved to Holmes Co., Ohio in 1812. John Schrock who emigrated in 1785 was the grandfather of Henry Shrock. These Shrocks (Schrags) came to America from Germany, but originated in Switzerland, Canton Bern. On page 3 we note that Jacob Schrag came to Montgomery Co. in 1717. On Sept. 1, 1736, the Ship Harle docked in Philadelphia with a passenger list including Christian Schryack; in 1766 a John Schrag landed in Philadelphia; in 1796 John Scrock had land in Elk Lick Township and in 1797 Jacob Shryock paid taxes in Brothers Valley Township where John Schrawk also owned land; in 1797 Christian Serok paid taxes in Elk Lick Township; in 1814 John and Barbara Schrack bought 153 acres from John Bell; etc.

Jacob Schrag (Schmitt Yakob)
1836-1928

"AS I REMEMBER THEM"

My grandfather, on my mother's side, JACOB SCHRAG, (1836-1928), son of Andreas and Barbara (Goering) Schrag was born in Waldheim, Volhynia, Russia on May 26, 1836. His father was a village blacksmith, and was known by the nickname "Schmitt." Hence, his son Jacob, the subject of this article, was known as "Schmitt-Yakob," and his brothers as "Schmitt-Hans" for John, "Schmitt-Sep" for Joseph, etc.

In Russia, Jacob was a farmer but was also interested in cattle and dairying. Cheese, butter, sausage, livestock, and other farm products were sometimes taken to Zhitomir or Kiev, some distance to the east of Waldheim. Grandfather Schrag could tell some exciting stories of various hazards encountered on some of these trips.

On December 26, 1854, he married Katherina Stucky, born May 5, 1837, the second child of Christian and Anna (Schrag) Stucky. Jacob and Katherina (Stucky) Schrag had nine children, eight daughters and one son. Two daughters died in infancy, one in Russia and one in 1874 during the migration to America. The son, John E., was born October 24, 1875, about one year after they arrived in Kansas.

When the migration to America took place in 1874, Jacob was 38 years old. Some of the Andreas and Barbara (Goering) Schrag family settled in Kansas and some in South Dakota. Evidently the Schrag brothers who settled in Kansas were somewhat better off financially than some of the other Swiss Volhynian Mennonites that settled around what is now Moundridge, Kansas. After selling their land, livestock, and other belongings in Russia in order to leave for America, it is reported, Jacob had around 6000 rubles, amounting to about $4,000.00. Soon after arriving in McPherson county he bought the northeast quarter of section 20, township 21, range 2 west of the 6th principle meridian from an early settler for $500.00. It had small buildings on it.

Soon thereafter he also bought the entire section, 640 acres, just across the road to the north from his home for $2.50 an acre or a total of $1,600.00. His Schrag brothers in Kansas also acquired considerable land. Jacob and his brother Joseph, who had married sisters, erected some of the large stone buildings on main street of Moundridge, when the town was established. One of these even now has Joseph's name carved in stone on it.

The Jacob Schrag home was located one mile north and two and a quarter miles west of what is now Moundridge, in McPherson County, Kansas. My parents lived one and a half miles west of the Schrag grandparents. Naturally we often visited them and they always had something a little special for the grandchildren.

The Jacob Schrag Family Background

Grandfather Schrag was a kind, friendly and spiritually minded person. Family devotions, composed of scripture reading, group singing, and kneeling by the entire family for prayer, morning and evening, was a regular practice. At Sunday church services it was customary for the minister to call upon one of the older brethren to lead the congregation in the closing prayer. Occasionally Grandpa Schrag was asked to do this, to which he responded with a simple, sincere and moving prayer.

It was customary for the children under school age to sit on the front benches during church services. Grandpa Schrag, as a result of typhoid fever when still a youth in Russia, was a bit hard hearing. Hence usually he also sat up front in church, right behind the children in the front rows. Children found it hard to sit quietly during the entire church service and so Grandpa voluntarily helped to keep them in order by tapping them on the shoulder when needed. This, of course, the children, especially his grandchildren, did not appreciate.

In some respects Grandpa, in line with our Amish heritage, was rather conservative. He was suspicious of the telephone, the automobile, and other American innovations and shunned them to his dying day. Although he did not always refuse to ride along in a car, he never would acquire an automobile or telephone for himself.

I well remember him remonstrating my parents for having lightning rods installed on the house and barn. To him that indicated a lack of trust and faith. He warned that God could also strike cattle in the pasture by lightning. And some months later my parents actually lost a number of cows as they grazed too close to a wire fence during a thunderstorm.

On another occasion my father had acquired a pony with a mule colt from Gypsies who were passing through the community. Grandfather Schrag was rather displeased about this and read Deuteronomy 22:9-11 to my parents.

You shall not sow your vineyard with two kinds of seed, . . . You shall not plow with an ox and an ass together. You shall not wear a mingled stuff, wool and linen together.

Then he also pointed out verse five in the same chapter:

A woman shall not wear anything that pertains to a man, nor shall a man put on a woman's garment; for whoever does these things is an abomination to the Lord your God.

He was not altogether happy with the Eden Church of which he was a member. It was a bit too progressive for him. He was quite impressed by a series of revival meetings that at one time were held in the community, southwest of Moundridge, by two preachers named Ramseyer and Kliewer. Occasionally, on Sundays he attended the Holdeman Church services north of Moundridge and sometimes he even talked of transferring his membership, but he never did.

On the other hand Grandfather Schrag, in some areas, was also rather progressive. He was a good farmer. His fields and machines were always kept in order. He had two big red barns, one on each side of the section line, they were kept in good repair and nicely painted. He was a lover of horses and had only well-fed and beautiful animals. He was especially proud of his team of "schimmel" (white horses), which was considered to be one of the fastest teams in the community, making the trip to Newton, about twenty miles away in about two hours.

Just west of the farmstead in a valley there was a creek. Here on the south side of the section line he had planted a large fruit orchard, while on the north side, in the pasture, he built a dam and so created a pond to provide water for the livestock and fish as food for the family.

He loved music and had an organ in the home. His two youngest daughters, Carolina (my mother) and Regina took organ lessons and played the hymns in the Gesangbuch mit Noten (The Conference Songbook With Notes) very excellently. How organ playing was reconciled with Amishness I often wondered, but never learned. Later the Eden Church, after long argument, also installed an organ, but the piano only came later.

Speaking of Grandpa Schrag "as I remember him," one of my boyhood experiences seems especially pertinent here. I was the oldest son in our family and so began helping with various farm tasks rather early. It was wheat threshing time and we were short of help. So I was asked to haul a load of wheat to the elevator at Moundridge, about five miles away. On the way I needed to pass Grandfather's home. Before getting there I noticed that the iron rim on one of the back wheels seemed rather loose and in danger of slipping off altogether. I was going to stop at Grandfather's place which was just on the other side of the valley. On the way down the hill my horses got lively and would not stop until they got to the bottom of the valley. Here I halted them and tried my best to replace the iron rim on the back wheel, which by now had nearly come off altogether. As I was trying to repair things, Grandfather saw that something was wrong in the valley and came to see what it was all about. Of course he recognized me and helped replace the rim and wire it on. In the process, however, he expressed surprise that my father would let a child haul a load of wheat on a wagon in such condition and with such lively horses. He indicated that he would remonstrate him for doing this, which he did at some length when he next saw him. The wheels held together until I got to town, unloaded, and got back home after dark. My father was anxiously waiting as all this had considerably delayed my return. I explained what had happened and all of us were grateful for a helpful and kind Grandfather.

Grandfather Schrag did not believe in higher education. This probably was partly due to Amish background but especially to the fact that his brother's son, who was one of the early students at Bethel College, where he became engaged to a fine Mennonite girl, but later while working for his Ph.D. degree at Johns Hopkins University, broke this engagement and married an eastern non-Mennonite girl. This was quite shocking for the entire community. I well remember how Grandfather in tears discussed this affair of his nephew with my parents, which seemed so disgraceful to him. He considered it a result of going to college and was greatly disturbed when my parents allowed my older sister to go to college and later also encouraged me to do so.

While a student at Bethel College, I joined the Volunteer Mission Band, preparing to serve as a foreign missionary. One Sunday our Band gave a mission program in my home church, Eden, west of Moundridge. One faculty member, Chrissy Yoder, an Old Mennonite, in plain dress with head covering, was with us and also spoke—but in English, while the rest of us spoke in German. Afterwards Grandfather told me, that, although he did not understand English, she still was of greater blessing to him than all other speakers combined. For him, her Amish look really helped.

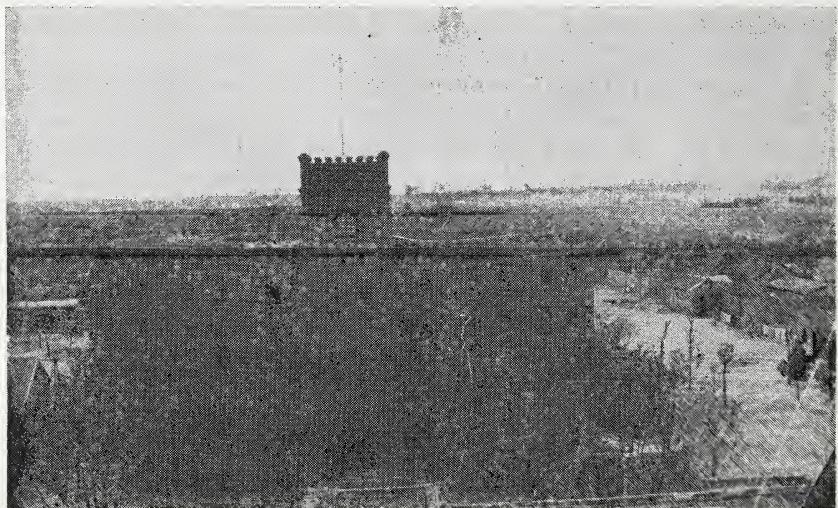

Later, when I was a senior in College, and Grandfather Schrag heard that I was planning to go to China, he was pleased. On visiting our family he mentioned that he had a quarter section, 160 acres of farm land in Reno County which he considered selling and then give the money to me for the mission cause. He indicated that, of course, he assumed I would go out independently and not under the auspices of some mission board. He was greatly disappointed when I told him that I had already committed myself to the General Conference Mennonite Foreign Mission Board. He thought a missionary should trust God alone and not go under some board. When leaving, he emphasized again, that he would do what he indicated, if I would go independently and under no board, and asked me to think it over and let him know. This I promised to do.

After a few days I went to visit and inform him that after prayerful consideration, I decided not to break my commitment to the Mission Board, but was very sorry to disappoint him by turning down his generous offer. He was very quiet for some time but finally said, that he was afraid I would do that, and so he also thought the matter over prayerfully and had come to the decision that in any case he would give me half of what the quarter would bring and give the other half to a distant relative, Jonathan Schrag of Freeman, South Dakota, who already was in China with the so called Bartel Mission, which was under no mission board. I very gratefully accepted the offer.

A few weeks later, after selling the land, he brought me the check for half of what the quarter brought. I deposited the money with the Mission Board with the understanding that they would send it to me after I had learned the Chinese language and got into my assigned work. So later the money was used to build the two story Hua Mei Academy building at KaiChow, Hopei, China, where I had charge of the Academy and some thirty primary schools in our General Conference Mennonite Mission from 1918 to 1925. Grandfather's interest and help in Christian education and the school work in China always has greatly impressed me and it was a great blessing in the missionary cause in that area.

Later the missionaries had to evacuate because of civil war conditions in China. What has become of the school or the entire mission at KaiChow since then is not fully known, but Christians, no doubt are still carrying on there in an underground fashion as they do in other parts of China.

Now back to Grandmother Katherina (Stucky) Schrag. She was born in Volhynia, Russia on May 5, 1837, died on February 16, 1892, and was buried in the Hopefield Mennonite Church four miles west of Moundridge, Kansas. Since that was only about one year after I was born, December 26, 1891, it is self evident that I do not know anything about her except what I learned from others. At this writing not even a picture of her has been available. It is generally known that she came from a musical family and, no doubt, was largely responsible for getting an organ into the home. One of her brother's boys, John E. Stucky, during early pioneer days had organized and directed a rather outstanding brass band that served on programs of various community Fourth of July and other celebrations. This was considered a rather worldly undertaking by the more conservative folks in the community. My mother often spoke to us children in loving memory and appreciation of her sainted mother.

The second marriage of Grandfather Schrag took place in the later part of 1892, to Mrs. Anna (Schrag) Kaufman (1849-1930) of Freeman, South Dakota. She was the widow of John Kaufman (1845-1890). (For details see Part IV, p. 198).

When Mrs. Anna (Schrag) Kaufman married Jacob Schrag in late 1892 she moved to Kansas with her children. She was a kindhearted lady and was known as "Freundliche Bas" (Friendly Aunt).

The second marriage of Grandfather Jacob Schrag and Anna

Jacob Schrag Family Record

(Schrag) Kaufman was blessed with one son Elias W., born April 9, 1893. On October 9, 1919, Elias married Elinora Schmidt from Freeman, South Dakota. At this writing both of them are residing on the Jacob Schrag home place, northwest of Moundridge, Kansas. At this writing, in 1974, it is 100 years that Grandfather Schrag or his son Elias lived on this farm home. EGK.

PART IV

SECOND MARRIAGE OF JACOB SCHRAG AND
ANNA (SCHRAG) KAUFMAN

PART IV SECOND MARRIAGE OF JACOB SCHRAG AND ANNA (SCHRAG) KAUFMAN

As indicated in preceding pages JACOB SCHRAG (1836-1928) on December 26, 1854 married Katherina Stucky (1837-1892). Early in 1892 Katherina (Stucky) SCHRAG died and late in the same year JACOB SCHRAG married ANNA (SCHRAG) KAUFMAN (1849-1930) of Freeman, South Dakota, the widow of John Kaufman (1845-1890). This Anna (Schrag) and John Kaufman family was blessed with ten children. The family underwent much hardship and suffering. Their first born son died in infancy in Russia, the second son died during the voyage to America, the third son died in infancy in South Dakota. Three more sons, with two neighbor boys, froze to death on their way home from school in the terrible blizzard in South Dakota on January 12, 1888. They could not be found until three days later. All five were buried in one grave. In 1890, the father, John Kaufman, also died and Mrs. Kaufman was left a widow with four living children: Julius, Jonathan, Emma, and Anna.

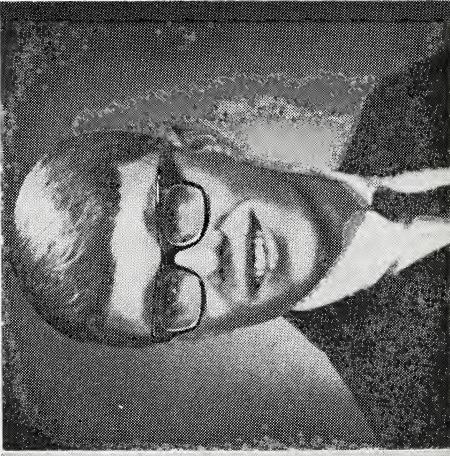

When Mrs. ANNA (SCHRAG) KAUFMAN married JACOB SCHRAG in late 1892 she moved to Kansas with her children. Julius (1882-1902) died as a youth and was buried in the Hopefield cemetery, west of Moundridge, Kansas. Jonathan (1884-____) married Clara Graber of South Dakota, where they also made their home. Emma (1886-1961), in 1904 married Rudolph Stucky (1881-1973) of Moundridge, Kansas, but made their home on a farm near Pretty Prairie, Kansas, where both are buried in the Pretty Prairie Mennonite Church cemetery. And Anna (1889-1967), in 1908 married David Zerger (1882-1960), making their home on a farm west of Moundridge, Kansas, where both of them are buried in the Eden Mennonite Church cemetery.

The second marriage of JACOB SCHRAG and ANNA (SCHRAG) KAUFMAN was blessed with one son Elias W. born April 9, 1893. On October 9, 1919, Elias married Elinora Schmidt of Freeman, South Dakota. At this writing both of them are residing on the JACOB SCHRAG home place, northwest of Moundridge, Kansas. In 1974 it was 100 years that Grandfather SCHRAG or his son Elias lived on this farm home.

FAMILY REUNION

Jacob Schrag 1836-1928 and Katherina (Stucky) Schrag 1837-1892
and Anna (Kaufman) Schrag 1848-1930

Bethel College, Memorial Hall, August 13, 1972. Basket Dinner at 1:00 p.m. Approximately 450 persons were present.

After dinner Harley Stucky, chairman, opened the meeting with scripture from Proverbs 3. He continued with remarks about family history and a little about the book being written. Some things that will be in the book are: coming from Russia, different regions, occupations, how many in a family, etc. The descendants of each family were asked to stand and were acknowledged. The program followed:

1. Freni (Schrag) and Joshua P. Stucky family: a musical number given.
2. Anna (Schrag) and Rev. John J. Stucky family: Phil Stucky and sons quartet sang.
3. Maria (Schrag) and Tobias Stucky family: a group of eight musicians sang a number, and Charlotte (Stucky) finished with a solo.
4. Katherina (Schrag) and Peter H. Wedel family: Milton Goering gave a talk on the importance of family trees, and relations.
5. Carolina (Schrag) and John P. Kaufman family: Ed. G. Kaufman gave a report on the proposed book. He stated that we could order books from our family chairman, with a down payment of a $5.00 deposit.
6. Regina (Schrag) and Jacob W. Krehbiel family: Carl and Ernest Krehbiel on string instruments with Mrs. Martha Graber accompanying rendered a musical number.
7. John E. and Maria (Zerger) and Elizabeth (Waltner) Schrag

Summary and Conclusion

family: A family history in poetry was written and given by Mrs. Paul J. Schrag.

8. Elias W. and Elinora (Schmidt) Schrag family: Elias Schrag sang a German solo.

The next business on the agenda was the report on Grandmother Katherina (Stucky) Schrag's grave. Ed R. Stucky stated that the grave is in the northwest corner of the Hopefield cemetery. The stone is in relatively bad shape and should be repaired.

A motion was made to refinish the present stone. The motion was seconded and passed. A collection was taken for refinishing the grave, and for other expenses. It was decided to give any extra money to the General Conference or to the Mennonite Central Committee. Jacob and Anna (Kaufman) Schrag's graves are in the northeast corner of the Eden cemetery, and are still in good shape.

A motion was made to have a Schmitt Yakob family reunion every five years. The motion was seconded and passed. The oldest family will be in charge of it in five years, the second oldest in ten, and so on down the line. Ed. G. Kaufman closed with prayer and we adjourned to take a group picture.
